Sowi-Doc.Award

Reconfigurations of Provisioning

Austerity and Interdependency in Volos, Greece

Syriza wins the elections. Athens 2015

Thrift requires harsh calculation.

Volos 2017

Weekly market. Volos 2016

General Assembly of the TEM Currency

Supermarkets lower prices. Volos 2017

Network. Volos 2017

Graffiti likening the Troika to the military junta. Volos 2017

Deep freezers used to buy when goods are cheap. Volos 2017

OBJECTIVE

RESEARCH TOPIC

Reconstructing the interdependency between household provisioning, state austerity, economic recession and alternative economies. Besides economic aspects, the study aimed for understanding the transformation of recognition, kinship, friendship, temporality and solidarity.

Reconfigurations of provisioning: the distribution, appropriation and con-

during recession and austerity.

complex re-configurations of production,

sumption necessary for modes of living

METHODOLOGICAL APPROACH

Critical ethnography. Participant observation in 12 months of living in several Voliot households, participation in several activist networks in the solidarity economy of Volos, over 40 interviews, surveys (n = 372), financial diaries (n = 7), secondary data (e.g. EUROSTAT).

RESULTS

MOBILIZATION OF KIN AND FRIENDS FOR UNPAID LABOUR.

Often framed as mutual support during crisis, the mobilization of long hours of unpaid labour became a necessity to sustain small enterprise and lifestyles.

DISLOCATION OF RECOGNITION

THROUGH IMPOVERISHMENT.

Neo-poor middle classes experienced impoverishment as becoming devalued others, e.g. de-emancipated women or ethnicized labour migrants.

DRAMATIC LABOUR DEVALUATION

AND PRECARIZATION.

As paid employment became ever more rare, employment relations dramatically deteriorated. All jobs paid less, and some paid nothing at all.

THRIFTINESS AS MORAL

PRACTICE OF CARE.

Thriftiness and buying cheap via bonus clubs, offers, and sales became a crucial means to care for significant others — with devastating consequences for local shops.

TEMPORAL REORDERINGS

OF NEEDS AND DESIRES.

Crisis was experienced as temporal reorderings — being thrown backwards, as being stuck with former desires, or as nostalgia for supposedly simpler times.

EMERGENCE OF

SOLIDARITY ECONOMIES.

Complementary currencies, social pharmacies, cooperative direct trade and other modes of solidarity helped households survive and sustain some level of consumption.

STRUCTURE OF THE MONOGRAPH

Introduction
PART I CHAPTER 1	Re-configurations of labour Ripple effects: labour devaluation and familiar ties
CHAPTER 2	Dislocating recognition: realising non-employment
PART II	Re-configurations of consumption
CHAPTER 3	Budgeting households: orches trators, hunters, and brokers
CHAPTER 4	Consuming crisis: distaste, dignity, and temporalisation
PART III CHAPTER 5	Re-configurations of sociality (Extra)ordinary transfers: support, protest, and complementarity
Conclusion	Interdependent reconfigurations of austerity

ANDREAS STREINZER

SUPERVISION: THOMAS FILLITZ

RESEARCH FIELD: SOCIAL & CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY

EARLY STAGE RESEARCHERS' POSTER PRESENTATION 2021