THE DEAN OF THE FACULTY OF SOCIOLOGY AT THE UNIVERSITY OF WARSAW invites applications for a 90%-time position of research assistant (engineering and technical) for a definite period of time.

CITY: Warsaw, Poland

POSITION: Research assistant (engineering and technical); one 90%-time job; 01.01.2023 to 31.12.2027

DISCIPLINE: sociological sciences

POSTED: 17.10.2022

APPLICATION DEADLINE: 19.11.2022

WEBSITE: http://www.uw.edu.pl/kategoria-praca/job-offers/

KEYWORDS: qualitative methods, social inequalities, human rights, women’s rights, reproductive rights, abortion, socio-legal studies

CANDIDATE PROFILE:

You are invited to apply for a Ph.D. student position in the ERC Consolidator grant ABORTION FIGURATIONS (Using Human Rights to Change Abortion Law: Involvement Patterns and Argumentative Architectures in the Global Figuration of Human Rights), led by Prof. Marta Bucholc at the Department of Sociology, University of Warsaw.

ABORTION FIGURATIONS will scrutinize the communication processes that use human rights as arguments to change abortion laws. We will contrast abortion debates from the last ten years in pairs of countries that represent three regional human rights systems: Mozambique and Senegal (the African Union), Poland and Ireland (the Council of Europe), and Argentina and Honduras (the Organization of American States). These debates show the ambivalence of human rights: they were used successfully to argue both for more liberal and more restrictive abortion laws. To explain this ambivalence, we will apply concepts of argumentative architecture and involvement patterns, coined by the PI as part of her figurational sociology of law, based on Norbert Elias’s theory of the process of civilization. Using a mixed-methods approach that combines qualitative sociology, legal analysis, and corpus linguistics, we will offer a multi-dimensional model for a globally comparative, interdisciplinary socio-legal study of human rights. We will study the structure, composition, and embedding of arguments, along with group perspectives, emotions, and circles of identification of arguing actors so as to arrive at a heat map that will show the distribution of involvement in argumentative architectures. By constructing a global meta-typology of argumentative architectures and involvement patterns in abortion debates, we will explore the... integrative, civilizing potential of human rights and identify the centrifugal forces in human rights figuration that comprise the local, regional, and global levels.

We are looking for a person with a Master's degree or equivalent in social sciences. A documented interest (for example through a thesis topic, doctoral project, research or community engagement) in human rights, women's rights, or reproductive rights is essential, alongside an experience in conducting qualitative research (including interviews and observations, discourse analysis and content analysis in the broadest sense), for example during the preparation of a qualification thesis. A very good command of English is required, however, as the project involves research in multiple languages, knowledge of at least one of the following languages will be an important advantage in applying for the position: Polish, French, Spanish, Portuguese. The tasks of the post will require a commitment to comparative research: it will not be possible to focus the project work solely on Poland.

Applicants may or may not be doctoral students at the time of application. Willingness to prepare a dissertation related to the problems of the project under the guidance of the PI (either as part of a doctoral school or as an extern) will be an added advantage in the competition. PLEASE NOTE: According to the current interpretation of the regulations in force, drawing a salary in the project does not affect the scholarship entitlement of doctoral students.

ABORTION FIGURATIONS will be an excellent start to an international career for ambitious young scholars interested in the broad field of socio-legal studies. We offer four years of employment at the best university and sociology department in Poland, professional organisational and technical support in conducting research, the opportunity to gain unique research experience in many countries, financing of conference trips and preparation of publications, active involvement of candidates in international cooperation networks in which the PI participates. The employment does not involve any teaching responsibilities, but we will also enable those willing to gain teaching experience.

We expect full readiness to work in an international interdisciplinary team, including in particular regular attendance at team meetings and constant interaction with team members performing research tasks in corpus linguistics. The project work will require intensive work on publications, in the preparation of which the team will have editorial and translation support. We also expect a willingness to undertake extended (several weeks) research trips, including outside Europe, and to be fully involved in numerous and time-consuming organisational tasks during the project. We require a willingness to commit to the project for four years: longer research leaves or additional professional commitments (travel, internships) involving a prolonged suspension of research activity in the project will not be possible. We expect the ability to use standard qualitative analysis software - other skills in the use of research software and in digital sociology (conducting quantitative and qualitative research online and with web-based tools) are very welcome. We expect proficiency in oral and written communication in all languages candidates declare to know, as well as a commitment to promoting research results in an international environment. Candidates' competences will be tested practically during the selection procedure.

REQUIREMENTS
Candidates will be evaluated in compliance with the requirements of the Statute of the University of Warsaw, the European Charter for Researchers. The Code of Conduct for the Recruitment of Researchers (https://euraxess.ec.europa.eu/jobs/charter/code) and the guidelines of the Rector of the University of Warsaw (No 106, 27.09.2019) as well as Resolution of the Council of the Faculty of Sociology on the detailed conditions for the conduct of employment proceedings in the Faculty.

The candidates should demonstrate:

1. A Master's degree or equivalent in social sciences;
2. Very good active knowledge of English (formal requirement). Knowledge of at least one of the following languages is welcome: Polish, French, Spanish, Portuguese;
3. Experience in conducting qualitative research, including in particular interviews and group focus interviews, observations, discourse analysis and content analysis;
4. Skills in using software supporting qualitative analysis;
5. Skills in the field of digital sociology will be an important additional advantage;
6. An interest in socio-legal studies and a documented (for example, through the subject of a master's thesis, doctoral project, research or community engagement) interest in human rights, women's rights, or reproductive rights;
7. Publication record thematically related to the project will be an important additional advantage;
8. Organisational experience (in any area, not only in higher education) will be a significant advantage;
9. Documented experience in project work (confirmation from the project leader will suffice) and international experience (internships, summer schools, study abroad) will be a significant advantage.

JOB DESCRIPTION

Responsibilities:

1. Participation in the preparation and conduct of field research (including conducting interviews and focus group interviews) as well as analysis research data, including taking extended (maximum several weeks) research trips, also outside Europe, together with other team members.
2. Carrying out analyses of the development of regulation, law enforcement practice and jurisprudence, legal doctrine and scholarship, and the state of the public debate on human rights and the legal regulation of abortion during selected periods, in the international human rights system and in the countries under study.
3. Regular and active participation in the work of the project team, including in particular regular attendance at team meetings;
4. Continuous cooperation with team members performing research tasks in the field of corpus linguistics (text search, searching legal text databases, assisting in the preparation and translation of phrase lists).
5. Intensive work on publications (the successful candidates will be expected to prepare at least one article per year in each year of employment in the project).
6. Cooperation in organisational tasks during the project, including preparation of project documentation and communication with local institutions in the countries where the field research will be conducted.
7. Engagement in activities to promote the results of the research in an international environment.
8. Processing and analysis of research data collected.
9. Preparing data for archiving under the guidance of the PI.
10. Dissemination of research results at international conferences, workshops and open seminars.
11. To become involved in the Faculty of Sociology community, including through membership in the selected department and the emerging Centre for Figurational Sociology.

EMPLOYMENT CONDITIONS

1. Job title: assistant;
2. Staff group: research;
3. The field and discipline in which the candidate will mainly carry out research: social sciences, sociological sciences;
4. Salary: at least 8300 PLN gross/month for 48 months as a 90%-time salary plus so-called thirteenth salary (the final salary depends on the length of the previous employment of the candidate);
5. The employment is planned to start on 1 January 2023, for 48 months on a 90%-time basis.

THE APPLICATION SHOULD INCLUDE:

1) An application letter addressed to the Vice-Rector of the University of Warsaw, Prof. Sambor Grucza;
2) A motivation letter addressed to the Selection Committee’s President, Prof. Marta Bucholc;
3) Curriculum vitae (including information confirming meeting the expectations towards the candidate);
4) Personal questionnaire for a person soliciting employment (http://bsp.adm.uw.edu.pl/bsp/druki-do-pobrania/) with a photo and an e-mail address;
5) Doctoral diploma (scan)
6) List of publications (including copies of no more than five most important publications (for books, title page and table of contents);
7) Declaration that the University of Warsaw will be the primary place of work of the candidate (downloadable from the University of Warsaw website, http://bsp.adm.uw.edu.pl/bsp/druki-do-pobrania/);
8) Information on the processing of personal data (information clause and consent clause) constituting an attachment to the announcement;
9) Documents confirming the information contained in the application documents (command of foreign languages, participation in research projects, foreign internships; etc.);

Attention! Only complete applications which fulfil the formal requirements will be processed. The applicants will not be given additional time to complete their application documents.

The application, together with a set of documents in the form of one .pdf file bearing a name including the candidate's name, should be sent by e-mail to the Secretary of the Competition Committee, Marta Gospodarczyk, MA (m.gospodarczyk@is.uw.edu.pl) by 19 November 2022. In the subject line of the e-mail, please write [Women’s Rights Assistant Application].

SELECTION PROCEDURE
The selection procedure is the first stage of the procedure set out in the University's Statute for the employment of an academic teacher. Its positive outcome is a prerequisite for further proceedings.

The selection procedure will be carried out in two stages. In the first stage, the Selection Committee will perform an initial evaluation of the candidates based on the submitted documents. The highest ranked candidates will be invited to an interview, which is the second stage of the selection procedure. Invitations to the interview will be sent to the candidates by e-mail. Interviews will be conducted electronically (via Google Meet or Zoom, under UW licenses). During the interview, the candidates will be requested to perform small tasks testing their skills as required by this call for applications.

Attention! The university does not provide accommodation.

The interviews are scheduled for 22-24 November 2022.
The selection procedure will end no later than: 26 November 2022.
The information on the results will be delivered to the candidates via e-mail.
