A BRIEF BIO

Inayat Ali Ph.D. is a Research Fellow at the Department of Social and Cultural Anthropology, University of Vienna, Austria. His doctoral degree is in sociocultural anthropology with a medical anthropology specialization and a geographical focus on Pakistan. His Ph.D. project studied measles and vaccination in Sindh Province, Pakistan. Using (ill-)health as analytical entry points, and significantly informed by critical medical anthropology, he explores, analyzes, and illuminates the interplay between health, disease, structured disparities, geopolitics, and biopolitics. He emphasizes applied research to produce anthropological knowledge that can contribute to current world problems. His most recent work focuses on COVID-19 in Pakistan, as he is working as the Principal Investigator of the project, Exploring and Understanding the Impacts of COVID-19: A Qualitative Inquiry, approved by the National Bioethics Committee of Pakistan (Reference No.4-87/NBC-471-COVID-19-09/20/). Much of that work has already been published in journals of anthropology and public health. He has authored around 50 peer and non-peer-reviewed articles: published, under review, and in preparation. He is lead editor of the book Negotiating the Pandemic: Cultural, National, and Individual Constructions of COVID-19. London: Routledge, with Robbie Davis-Floyd as co-editor, forthcoming in 2022. Moreover, based on his academic orientation, he has written many op-eds in Pakistan's leading English newspapers, e.g., Dawn. ORCID ID: 0000-0003-1659-8492. inayat_qau@yahoo.com
